A Real Menace

Summer is in the air. The nights will soon be nippy and chill, and if we have not been careful to stock up on our bank of health with a little surplus of energy during the long sunny days, we may be disgusted to find ourselves with a developing common cold.

To declare the Canadian Red Cross magazine in discussing what it characterizes as a real menace in this country. Coryna is the official name of the common cold, but the name is not very indicative of the nastiness of the disease at first blush. Coryna is a real menace. There is no other affliction that quite so universally causes discomfort or so great a loss of time for workmen, business men, and school child.

A lowering of vitality means a slow-down in usefulness or production, and this may be a very real menace to a nation's health. It is not a disease, but a condition, and it is a nation's health, we will cease to think in dollars.

The real menace of a cold is its possible bad after-effect on the individual. As it is caused by various bacteria very often allied to those responsible for the pneumonia, for bronchitis, laryngitis, and possibly catarrh, it often leaves in its wake damages that are permanent.

When we speak of "catching" cold, we speak correctly, for by "catching" we mean getting it from the other fellow about ninety per cent. of our colds come from him.

Very rarely one may develop his own cold, for these germs probably are everywhere in the nose and throat and will multiply and thrive should the vitality of the host be sufficiently lowered to furnish a good culture ground for their growth.

This may be effectively avoided by avoiding fresh air and sunshine, by loss of energy, over-fatigue, or living in over-heated rooms. Insufficient, improper, or excessive food or clothing assists greatly.

But for the vast majority of our colds, we may blame close contact with our neighbor who coughs, sneezes, and spits, and who uses his handkerchief to saturation and then greets us with a friendly handshake.

Ignorance of man-made laws excuses no one; ignorance or disregard of the laws of health eventually spares no one. The person with a bad cold should be regarded as having a dangerous communicable disease, and we should know enough, and our children should be taught to avoid him. Even among people who realize this, knowledge generally outstrips practice, and on and on goes the cold.

The trouble is that the vast majority of people do not regard the common cold seriously enough. If they, or their dear ones, contract tuberculosis, or are stricken down with pneumonia, they are seriously alarmed, but they overlook the fact that the common cold may be the forerunner of these and other dread diseases. "Oh, it is only a cold," they indifference say with a shrug of the shoulders, ignorant or careless of the fact that the cold will quickly seize upon the weakest spot in the human body, whether it be the throat, the nose, the lungs, the heart, the kidneys, or elsewhere, and when at last realization comes that there is something seriously wrong it frequently is devastatingly too late.

"It is the little things in life that are causing all the strife," is an old saying. "It is also what is generally regarded as the little things that are responsible for most of the ills from which mankind suffers. Make no mistake about it, the common cold is no little thing although we may look upon it as such. Get after it, the moment its first symptoms make their appearance. Better still, exercise those precautions necessary to prevent taking a cold in the first instance.

Finally, if you can't or won't dodge the common cold, then at least don't make it necessary for your neighbor to dodge yours.

Blacksmith Modern Samson

Bar Of Iron Easily Twisted By Young Englishmen

A modern Samson is Joe Price, a blacksmith, who competed in the shoeing competition at the Royal Show at Nottingham. The man a few years ago was champion weight-lifter of England. He can twist a seven-foot bar of iron five by fifteen of an inch thick into "loose" knots. He is also able to hammer a piece of cold iron until it is red hot and bend between his fingers two shoeing nails into staples. A rope was fastened to his neck and two men tried to strangle him. "It was like tugging on a tree trunk," said one.

Record Honey Crop

Beekeepers in the Fraser Valley, B.C., look for a record honey crop this year, greater than last year's production of 170 tons. There are 8,000 hives contained in 1,000 apiaries, according to the latest census, and the season, as to weather, has been particularly favorable to a maximum production.

Demand For Farm Implements

Saskatoon Dealers Report Increased

Saskatoon implement firms report an increased volume of sales for this year, ranging from 25 to 100 per cent. over those at this time last year. An encouraging feature, too, is that cash payments are larger this year. An active demand for combine-harvesters is also noted and a large portion of implements purchased such as plows, discs, etc., have been for tractor equipment.

Tablet Glorifies Assassins

Jugo-Slavia has erected a massive marble tablet to the two murderers who started the world war. It marks the spot where Archduke Franz Ferdinand and his Archduchess were assassinated in 1914. The monument glorifies the assassins because their act has resulted in the independence of all southern Slavs.

Regina Population Increases

A directory census of Regina, capital of Saskatchewan, shows a population of 55,000, an increase of 4,000 in twelve months. A similar census shows the population of Saskatchewan to have increased 6,000 during the past year. It is now placed at 45,000.

Canadian Farmers Have Advantage

"Wheat farmers of Montana alone paid nearly $8,000,000 more in freight on their wheat crops in 1927 than they would have paid had they shipped in Canada," stated Senator Wheeler of Montana, speaking in the United States Senate recently.

A TIRED-OUT FEELING

Is a Sure Sign That the Blood Is Thin and Watery

"I am glad to have an opportunity of testifying to the benefits I derived from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills," writes Mrs. Lawrence Kennedy, St. Joseph, N.B. She further says:—"Some years ago I was working as a stenographer, and because badly run-down. I always had a tired-out feeling, and my appetite and suffered terribly from backache. After some time I had read in the paper of the benefits derived from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I have reason to be glad that I followed this advice. Before long I began to feel much better. Continuing their use my strength came back, I regained my appetite and the terrible backache from which I had suffered for so long has been relieved. Some years ago I had four healthy children, a girl and a boy, and am in the best of health. All this I owe to Dr. Williams' famous Pink Pills, and I trust that these few lines may help some of my fellow sufferers. I have been married some years now and have four healthy children, a girl and a boy, and am in the best of health. All this I owe to Dr. Williams' famous Pink Pills, and I trust that these few lines may help some of my fellow sufferers. I have been married some years now and have four healthy children, a girl and a boy, and am in the best of health. Dog Fish Oil

New Industry Is Getting Under Way In British Columbia

The vicious dog fish of the Pacific Coast has at length found a niche in the scheme of economic usefulness. Judging by a new industry getting under way at Vancouver, Dog fish oil is the new raw material for keeping away mosquitoes, black flies and other insect pests which molest man and beast in the preparation of a ray of dog fish oil being used in the manufacture of the preparation.

Demand For Canadian Wheat

Believe That Demand From Great Britain Will Continue To Increase

Speaking at Edmonton, Saskatchewan, the other day, F. J. Sproule, director of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool expressed the belief that the Orient's demand for Canadian wheat, which last year were greater than those of any three previous years, would continue to increase. He mentioned incidentally that the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool now has 925 country elevators and terminal elevators of 26,000,000 bushels capacity, while it is also holding another elevator of 6,000,000 capacity.

An Important Industry

The pulp and paper industry is the most important manufacturing industry in Canada; heading the lists in the list of great value of manufactured products as well for distribution of wages and salaries. In total capital invested the industry is second only to electric light and power plants and in total number of employees it is second only to saw-mills.

Carried Messages During War

The dean of the war-time carrier pigeons, named "Charlie," recently died in Lille, France. The pigeon owner, Maurice Richardson, an Englishman, was able to conceal the bird during the four-year German occupation of Lille, and Charlie carried hundreds of important messages to allied authorities. Since the close of the World War, he has received a "pension" of two francs a month from the French Government.

A Canadian Flag

General Opinion Would Stem To Favour A Distinctive Flag

In an editorial on a Canadian flag the morning paper says:
"The possibility of a new flag should only arise where there is a national feeling. There is no such demand in Canada."

If the proposal of a distinctive Canadian flag were to be submitted to the Canadian people, at least four-fifths of them would vote in favor of it. There are not many nationalists left in Canada. Nor should there be any delay in putting this country on a level with Australia, New Zealand, the Irish Free State, and South Africa, all of which have their own flags. Other countries are proud that Canada, the oldest most prosperous of the younger Dominions of the British Commonwealth, remains without its own national emblem.

Canada inevitably will have her own flag and in this there should be the Union Jack and some Canadian emblem that would typify the union between Canada and the United Kingdom. The Union Jack, of course, is emblematic of only the United Kingdom, Ireland and Scotland—Victoria Times.

Experiment In Immigration

Farmers Of Western Canada Asks By Providing Work For British Miners

An experiment in colonization on a scale never before attempted is now in progress in Canada. Ten thousand men from the mining districts of England, driven almost to despair by an attempt to maintain themselves and their families upon the dole, have come to Canada to help with the harvest and to start life anew if the opportunity to work after the harvest is, it is, afforded them. It is an experiment in which the British and Canadian Governments have co-operated and in which the railway companies and steamship lines are also assisting. And while the hope for harvest help has proved the primary reason for making the attempt, the real purpose is to settle, once and for all, that much-discussed problem of whether or not the British-born man is any longer a desirable settler for the west.

No one can estimate how far-reaching may be the effect of the success or failure of the experiment. Failure may retard the course of British immigration to Canada for years. Failure may further the belief, preached in many quarters in the Old Land, that Canada does not want the British-born. Failure may produce a general reaction which will injure Canadian prestige and Canadian credit. Success, on the other hand, will effectively silence the criticism of Canada's colonization policy. Success will give new hope and fresh endeavor to thousands of Britishers who unquestionably are desolate citizens in Canada, who have been holding back because they believe they are not wanted here, or because they do not believe their rights in Canada the opportunities which are advertised. Success will enhance Canadian prestige in Great Britain and improve Canadian credit.

Speaking In Winnipeg early in August, Mr. Ramsay pleaded for a warm welcome for these men. Such a welcome would, he said, prove whether or not Canadians are true to their protestations that they are not discriminating against the British-born immigrant. These men, he said, have now arrived. The provincial governments, the railways and civic authorities have co-operated in making them feel at home. Work was found for all of them as quickly as they reached Winnipeg; and of them are now doing the hard work for the first time in years.

But to welcome them is not sufficient.

The harvest cannot continue when winter sets in. Either work must be found for these 10,000 men during the winter months or they must be sent back to England to spread stories of Canadian inhumanity and the lack of opportunity in this country. All of these men are mining and are able to do any kind of work that will not then sufficient to keep alive during the winter months. "If they get left, it will be because they are not on the farms or in other forms of employment. But the winter months will tell the story of success or failure."

In providing work for these men during the winter months the farmers of Western Canada can assist more than any other agency. For the expenditure of a very few dollars during the winter months the farmer will be able to employ these men more than any other agency. It is true many of them will be unskilled. But the wage will be that of unskilled labor, and by the time spring rolls around the man will probably have learned enough to prove of considerable value to his employer in the plowing and seeding of the fields.

Such a system does not in the least mean charity. It is a sound business practice. For the investment of a few dollars per month the farmer will have help during the winter and, with the coming of spring he will not have to lose the great part of his investment. It is a highly commendable market for labor. That which he will pay out during the winter months will be saved by reason of the fact that it will not be necessary for him, in the spring, to engage new help at high wages.

The governments and the railroad companies are spending tens of thousands of dollars to bring this experiment to a successful issue. It is to be hoped that the farmers and other employers of labor will also lend their aid in an issue which distinctly national in all of its characteristics.

FARMING HIGHLY SPECIALIZED BUSINESS

It is a long step from the farming methods of our forefathers with their walking plows and reapers, to modern agricultural practices.

Farming has kept pace with the growth of other industries, and today it is a highly specialized business especially when conducted on a large scale.

Thomas D. Campbell, a wheat baron of Montana is directing farming operations on 35,000 acres of land in his home state. Mr. Campbell recently wrote an article which was published in the Magazine of Business and regarding the matter of farm labor costs he states:

"Labor costs per acre on our job at $6.50 a day for engine operators, are less than they were thirty years ago when the standard for 'bread belly' on the farm was $25 a month and board. We have developed large power units and hitches whereby we can plow an acre of land at a labor cost of 27 cents need it for about 7 cents an acre and harvest and thresh at a labor cost of 40 cents per acre."

WOMEN RULES THE ROOST

The following paragraph was published in the editorial column of the New York Forum:
"Most things are being 'done' in America by man; but it is always women who inspires him. Her inspiration and influence stand behind all American educators, as it stands behind all American prohibitionists. Her influence accounts for the infidelity of laws and rules. She directs the whole cultural tradition. She also dictates in the field of moral conduct. Who wants to study the real meaning and purpose of a caste system, should today not visit India, but America."

THE LURE OF THE CITIES

What is it this lure of the cities? Why is it that so many young men and young women leave their homes in the country and small town, and go to the cities to seek excitement, new life, and look for fame and fortune?

The old proverb about far away fields looking green is probably one of the reasons. Youth, craving excitement, seeking new scenes and new thrills, turns to the cities to satisfy this craving. But after a few years spent amid the hustle and bustle, the scurry and scramble for existence, the daily grind in office or factory, a large percentage of these people find that the city was not what they thought, and they wish they were back on the farm or in the old home town. The glitter they find to be of the excitement a form of agitated inactivity, and the glamour a selective haze that hides a specious life.

But today there is less reason for the young people moving to the cities. The motor car has brought the country closer to the city, and made it possible for people to make quick trips to the city and get a taste of the pleasures offered by the big metropolis. And today much of the drudgery has been removed from farm life. Power farming machinery, power washing machines, electric light and running water on the farm, have lightened the labor of farm work, and boys and girls should be more content to remain in the old home. Farming has been modernized, and today farming in western Canada, is on a good paying basis, offering inducement to the younger generation to carry on in the same line as their fathers.

VISITORS FROM SOUTHERN CONTINENT

A party of about 118 members of the Scottish Australian Delegation will visit Bassano next Monday, Sept. 16th. This party has been making a tour of Great Britain, and is now on its way back to Australia. They will stop off for about four hours at Bassano, and will visit the irrigation works and farms in the district.

The Australian delegation will see western Canada at its best. They will see the heavy crops of grain which are grown in Alberta, and witness the work of harvesting and threshing the grain.

Their visit to the irrigation project should be particularly interesting, for here they will see the great engineering works which are a part of the irrigation system.

The Bassano Board of Trade has undertaken to show the visitors about the district, and with the assistance of residents of the town and country, cars will be provided for this purpose.

The members of the Scottish Australian Delegation are much impressed with Canada, and are said to be most interesting guests. Their visit to Bassano is one of the important parts of their tour.

The Milking Machine

Yes, we owe quite a lot to Marconi and Wedgwood.

And to Edward Tella and Wright. And inventors who scheme over gas, over steam.

To give us more power and light! They have lessened our fret and our toil and our sweat.

And have made life more smooth and serene!

But I have my applause to whoever it was

That invented the milking machine

For the worst of the bores on a farm was the shorn.

And milking the worst one of all. By the dawn's early light and the darkness of night.

In winter, spring, summer and fall. 'Twas the same thing each day in the same stupid way.

A job that was drudging and mean, And it seemed like a curse that grew steadily worse.

Till along came the milking machine.

Oh, the grumbling I've done when the milking was one

Of the farm's most laborious tasks! But now I sit and sing while that vacuum line is milking two heifers at once.

And it seems like a dream as I watch the white stream

That flows through the tubes, pure and clean.

For my hands don't get sore like they used to before.

We put in that milking machine.

Now I don't know the name of the man who can claim

The milking machine was his birth.

But I'm willing to swear it was some guy somewhere.

Who'd had to milk cows in a bunch.

Some farm had like me who conceived the idea

And who worked the thing out in his brain.

So that farm hands could smile while the milking, meanwhile, Was done by the milking machine.

—Berton Brainer.

COOK—Experienced lady cook with boy 16, wants work on farm or cook car. Apply Hunter-Hotel, Mrs. Olson.

A tablet in memory of men of the Seventh Royal Fusiliers who served with the Quebec Garrison during the siege of 1776-78 by the Americans under Montcalm and Arnold, was unveiled on Dominion Day on the Wall of the Chateau Frontenac by His Excellency the Governor-General. Present at the ceremony were officers of the Fusiliers from England and a detachment from the Canadian Fusiliers of London, Ontario, who are affiliated with the English corps.

The Chateau Frontenac occupies the site of the old Chateau St. Louis which was the military headquarters during the siege.

Inspection of the "Duchess of Bedford," new 20,000-ton Canadian Pacific liner, which recently made her maiden trip to Montreal, at once disclosed the extreme suitability of these "Duchess" ships for tropical travel. Ventilated space, Ball-Louvre system of individually controlled outlets, cool air is forced under gentle pressure to every part of the vessel. Broad sun-decks and an open-air swimming pool add to the luxurious appearance of the ship and it has now been decided that the "Duchess of Athol" shall be used on the South America-South Africa cruise next year.
